

"It can't be done indoors"

Gardening can be done indoors; utilizing small greenhouses or corners can add a lovely touch to your home.

A few more benefits come out with doing them, such as improving focus, lowering stress, and air purification.

"IT'S TIME CONSUMING"

While adding a new hobby to your routine can take some extra time as you're trying to figure everything out.

If you feel you don't have much time to spare for gardening, some tips you can keep in mind to ensure you can manage your time include starting small, making it a family activity, and starting early in the gardening season.

COMMON GARDENING MISCONCEPTIONS

"It's expensive"

A common misconception of gardening is that it will always be costly.

Growing a garden can reduce the amount of money spent on expenses such as groceries.

Although this 'potential' reduction in costs depends on the types of vegetables grown, supplies bought and other factors. If done in a cost-effect way by deciding on low-priced seeds and using certain materials, gardening can produce a significant reduction in your financial cost for food.

"It's difficult"

Gardening can be a challenge at first when you're trying out different techniques, although once you have it all down, it can be a REWARDING hobby to have.

The most significant step needed to ensure that gardening doesn't become an overwhelming task includes PREPPING.

Having a clear idea of the outcome you want, what you want this garden to serve, and what supplies you need will allow for a SMOOTH beginning.

"IT REQUIRES A LARGE SPACE"

Believe it or not, gardening can be done in any size area. If you don't have access to a garden space outdoors, you can make do with a small corner or balcony space in your home. Different community gardens may have an available land plot for you!

Examples of objects you can use as potters:

GLASS JARS

WATERING CANS

WOODEN BASKETS
